Favre selected to Pro Bowl team

BY TRACI BONNEY
Proud papa Irvin Favre just got another reason to brag about one of his sons: Brett, playing football for the Green Bay Packers, was named to the National Football Conference's Pro Bowl team Wednesday.

Favre said Thursday that the telephone had been constantly busy with calls from well-wishers from the moment the news was announced on television Wednesday evening.

"We're tremendously excited for Brett, but like he said (in an Associated Press wire report), the most important thing to him is that his team gets into the playoffs."

The Packers (9-6) face the Minnesota Vikings today, and must defeat them to make the playoffs.

The patriarch of the football Favres commented further on Brett's selection: "This is a great honor for Brett, to be chosen for the Pro Bowl. It's wonderful for your peers, the guys you play with and against, to recognize your ability and talent this way."

Brett Favre, a former Hancock High and USM gridiron star, is now the fourth-rated passer in the NFC with a quarterback rating of 88.7.

"It's pretty darn good to be one of three NFC quarterbacks chosen, to be up there with Steve Young and Troy Aikman," Brett's dad a fantastic year."

Chamber committee pushes Litter Free '93 campaign

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
A recent rash of litter strewn across the county has resulted in several warning letters being sent by Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Two litter citations were also issued by the Bay St. Louis Police officers during the past month with fines being issued in Municipal court.

The Beautification Committee of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, has placed emphasis on the reduction of litter and has been working towards a Litter Free '93 campaign which began early in 1992.

Carol Vegas, chamber Beautification anti-litter campaign chairman said, "Warning letters have been sent by the sheriff and police chiefs during the year, with eight such letters being sent this month by Sheriff Peterson."

"If we are to reach our goal of Litter Free '93, we need the assistance and cooperation of all of our residents," Vegas added.

Among the many accomplishments of the Chamber's Beautification Committee during 1992 is a large number of anti-litter signs installed throughout the cities and county.

Anti-litter hotlines have been initiated too during 1992, to be used to report someone tossing trash out of a vehicle.

The numbers to call are 255-6234 for a violation witnessed in Bay St. Louis, and 255-6246 for one witnessed in the county.

A recording will instruct a caller as to how to report a violation.

A person need not give his or her name, just the vehicle's tag number, time and location. After the vehicle registration is traced, a letter will be sent by the appropriate authority to the vehicle owner.

Illegally dumped litter is also checked for identification and when it is found a warning letter is also sent from the appropriate authority.

Several members of the cleanup team are also using camcorders to record violations of illegal dumping.

Need a ride? Local cab company offers free New Year's transportation

For those who have had too much holiday cheer, or whose vehicle has had too much holiday road-running, or even those who have no vehicle in which to run the roads, there is help this New Year's Eve.

Recently licensed cab operators Louis and Marjie Hearty are working in conjunction with all three local law enforcement agencies to offer taxi rides home to anyone in need of transportation New Year's Eve. Their free cab service will start in the evening December 31 and will continue until 7 a.m. New Year's Day.

"The only stipulations are that they really need a ride and that they go home," Mrs. Hearty said. "We're not going to take anyone bar-hopping or from party to party."

Those who may need the Hearty's assistance for transportation New Year's Eve, may call them at 467-1260; or call the Sheriff's Department, Bay St. Louis or Waveland police departments.

Drug operations take time, planning

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
The gathering of information by the Hancock County drug task force begins months before a specific operation is planned, members say.

The recent Operation Crack of Dawn, as an example, involved three and one half months of planning, which included purchasing drugs.

This was only after much other information had been gathered by task force members, as well as by other law officers from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments.

The tri-entity task force includes, Glen Strong, sheriff's office; Shane Corr and Terry Eley, Bay police and Dave Stepro, Waveland police.

In a press conference at 7 a.m. on the morning of Operation Crack of Dawn, when 27 persons were arrested within a two-hour period, officials elaborated a bit on how much work goes into such an operation.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said, "This is not the last operation we will conduct. Now that we have completed this operation, today is another day. We will go on and continue to fight the drugs in the county."

Waveland Mayor Stella Frilot stated, "It is not like the guys you see on television, of course that was my only exposure prior to becoming mayor."

"These guys (task force members), it is incredible the hours it takes to convict a person, as they have to cross every 't' and dot every 'i.' They are so professional," Frilot continued.

Bay Mayor Eddie Favre added, "If it is not a perfect presentation from start to finish. They can just walk. Then everything was for nothing and that is not what we are looking for."

Officials realized they did not round up all of the drug dealers in the area, and this led Favre to say, "The people who deal (sell drugs) who were not picked up may not have been picked up this time; but that's not to say next time."

There are still several warrants which have not been served as yet on Operation Crack of Dawn, task force officers report.

Task force members spend many hours of their time at

South Mississippi Thoroughbred Association members bid for siring rights on stallions

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
"Going once, going twice, sold!" was the call of the night as 15 to 20 horse owners gathered in the Standard community to compete for breeding rights on 39 champion sires.

It will be three years before the offspring of these matings test their abilities on local racetracks.

As two-year-olds they will compete in the Mississippi Breeders' Cup race. The first of its kind was held this past September at Jefferson Downs in Kenner, La., containing the offspring of the first association stud auction.

Funds raised by the auction are added to the track purse, and the owner of the winning horse's sire receives a percentage.

This year's auction took place prior to the association's annual Christmas party.

Auctioneer Larry Favre casually conducted the proceedings from a nearby table.

Listings of the horses, their sires and owners were passed around the room, and one by one, the bids began.

Breeding rights offered that night sell up to $5,000. Stud owners from Texas to Florida contributed to the benefit event.

Pete Moran, one of the founding members, explained how seven years ago there was only one thoroughbred association available to horse owners throughout the state.

Because members along the coastal counties felt they were not receiving adequate representation, they formed the South Mississippi Thor-

Leukemia Society
in need of volunteers

The Leukemia Society of America is recruiting volunteers for its annual door-to-door campaign set for March 1-14.

According to Renda McGowan, Mississippi Coordinator, last year Mississippi volunteers raised $65,000 and this year's goal is $80,000.

Funds from the drive support the Leukemia Society's programs of research, patient services, and public and professional education. More than 400 Mississippi residents are enrolled for financial assistance with chemotherapy, lab fees, radiation therapy and transportation.

To help the Leukemia Society in the neighborhood march, contact the Alabama/Mississippi headquarters at 205/939-1690. For information about services and programs of the Society, contact the Mississippi office, Leukemia Society of America, 300 Old Canton Road, Suite 500, Jackson, MS 39216; phone 601/982-5334.

ON PATROL

CAR-WHEEL COLLISION

Mississippi Highway Patrol Officer Joe Gazzo reported Thursday that a Florida man's pickup truck was totaled on Interstate 10 Wednesday when one of two runaway wheels from an 18-wheeler hit the pickup head-on.

Gazzo said John H. McDermott, 60, of Nashville, Tenn., was west-bound north of Pass Christian around 9:25 a.m. Wednesday when two wheels came off the trailer of his rig. One wheel stopped in the median, but the other bounced into the eastbound lane, colliding with a 1988 Nissan pickup being driven by Paul D. Hicks, 31, of Glen St. Mary, Fla.

The seatbelt Hicks was wearing at the time prevented him from being injured, Gazzo added. No charges were filed from the incident.

NASA's low vision
system earns award

Researchers involved in the development of a system that can give new hope to millions of Americans afflicted with certain low vision problems were honored recently with a national award.

The prestigious Award of Excellence in Technology Transfer went to scientists at the Wilmer Eye Institute of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for their part in developing the low vision enhancement system with NASA's Technology Transfer Program and the John C. Stennis Space Center.

"We are proud that the Johns Hopkins Wilmer Eye Institute has been recognized for their important role in developing the low vision enhancement system," said Dr. William Husconica, director of Stennis Space Center's Science and Technology Laboratory.

"This is the type of technology transfer that we at Stennis Space Center take pride in. The award is really a tribute to what can be accomplished when government and private enterprise work together to solve problems that can benefit people around the world," Husconica stated.

The Technology Utilization Foundation presents two awards each year to private sector organizations that have taken research or innovations developed by or with the federal government and adopted the technology into important products and processes that benefit the national economy and everyday life.

Scientists from Stennis Space Center and the Wilmer Eye Institute used NASA-developed technology to produce the low vision enhancement system. The technology was originally developed for computer processing of satellite images, along with head-mounted vision enhancement systems, to assist in potential space exploration missions.

The low vision enhancement system consists of a pair of wrap-around video screens worn like eyeglasses by the person suffering from a particular visual malady. The camera sends the images to a computer-based system.

The computer, already programmed to correct for the visual problem of the individual, manipulates the images and sends them back to the patient. Small video screens, which have roughly the same field of view as eyeglasses, then display the images.

Experts estimate that more than three million Americans today are visually handicapped. By the turn of the century, this number is expected to grow as the population ages. Yet, more than 80 percent of those who are legally blind retain some vision.

The low vision enhancement system could potentially help many of these people. The sponsor of the Award of Excellence in Technology Transfer—the Technology Utilization Foundation—is a New York-based non-profit organization dedicated to facilitating and promoting the transfer of federally funded technology to the private sector.

Savings Bond
sales total
$1.7 million

"Fiscal year 1992 sales of U.S. Savings Bonds totaled more than $1.7 million in Hancock County," said Doris Carrio and Eva Smith, Hancock County chairmen, U.S. Savings Bonds.

In Mississippi, $65,661,000 were sold in Fiscal year 1992, while sales throughout the nation reached $13.59 billion for the same period.

Since the adoption of market-based interest in November 1982, the total amount of Savings Bonds held by the public increased from $67.8 billion to an all-time high of $153 billion.

Cooperation in 1992 by all county and city elected officials and also law enforcement agencies has been the best ever, Ellis C. Cuevas, Chamber Beautification Committee chairman reports.

The establishment of an adopt-a-street or road program was initiated during 1992 with many blocks being adopted by residents, businesses and groups.

To adopt a street or road in Bay St. Louis call, Naomi Martin, 467-2537; Diamondhead, Robert Valigosky, 255-7198, or county residents, Linne Swilley, 255-3367.

The goal of the Beautification Committee is to have every street and road adopted by the end of 1993, Vegas said.

A new award was established during 1992 titled Clean and Beautiful Award, and the first recipients were Alcan Cable, Bay St. Louis, and G.E. Plastics, Port Bienville Industrial Park.

The education programs of the Beautification Committee will continue with the reaching of more students in the elementary grades. Supervisor Howard Lizana is the education chairman.

Any interested citizen with any special ideas, or wanting to participate in the the chamber's cleanup efforts can call 467-9048, Cindy Vernon, chamber executive director said.

The first meeting of the chamber's beautification committee is set for Jan. 21, 10 a.m. in the Humane Services Complex Conference Room, Longfellow Road. The public is invited.

Membership is limited to Mississippi thoroughbred own-

The most important aspect of belonging to the association, he said, is the contacts one makes in the world of thoroughbred

Today the association boasts 250 paid members.

It claims associate members from around the country.

A future desire for the association is that one day, Mississippi will permit pari-mutual betting, and local owners can race their own horses within their own state.

Association members view the recent passage of dockside gambling as a preside and possible indicator of coming change.

When the bidding ended, about half of the breeding rights were sold.

Association president Tommy Peterman reported, remaining horses will be available for purchase by association members until the end of breeding season on June 1.

After than, funds raised will be placed in an interest drawing account where it will sit until the offspring of this auction are ready to race.

Meanwhile, since it was near Christmas, and the bidding was completed, Favre called an end to the auction.

As he did so, in walked some musicians; association members began passing around glasses of cheer; and before you could say, "Laissez les bon temps rouler," two-legged high step in was revealed as the subject of that night's meeting.

night doing surveillances, being attacked by mosquitos, gnats, rain and cold weather.

A police officer from another department was used in Operation Crack of Dawn to make purchases, during the three and one-half months of planning officials' report.

Peterson said two days after the roundup, "The suspects have been given an initial hearing and now await a preliminary hearing in Justice Court sometime in January."

Task force members have to make presentations in Justice Court, and if the suspects are bound over to the January Grand Jury, the presentations have to be made once again.

There are meetings with the DA's office and then the case has to be presented to a jury, Peterson added.

The sheriff, police chiefs and both mayors, all indicated this takes a lot of the task force members' time.

Bonds were set at $5,000 each charge, with the suspects having from one to four counts.

Many are still in jail, unable to post bond, and several will be handled as multiple offenders.

Four vehicles were confiscated in Operation Crack of Dawn, as they were used to transact business, officers said.

Peterson, Favre, Frilot, Bay Chief Frank McNeil and Waveland Chief Jimmy Varnell, all had high praises for all officers of the three departments and were very complimentary of how smoothly Operation Crack of Dawn was conducted.

Favre

Although Favre's first comments understandably focused on his son's achievement in personal terms, he also recognized the significance to the county of Brett's selection.

Brett Favre

"It's a big honor for Hancock County also, and for the county school system, since that's where he came from and where he got his start playing football."

Even so, Favre could not help but return to the personal aspect of this unexpected Christmas present for his family.

"We're tickled to death about this," he commented happily.

campus, as well as university organist.

Mehrtens sang with the New Orleans Symphony Chorus and was assistant director of the Loyola Vocal Chamber Ensemble. After receiving her master of music degree, she has performed and conducted choirs throughout the South.

Mehrtens currently teaches music at Our Lady Academy, is director of choruses at Delgado College in New Orleans and teaches voice and piano at the Gulf Coast School of the Performing Arts in Gulfport.

Dennis Assaf, concert master, holds a bachelor of music education degree from Loyola University and a master of music in conducting from the University of New Orleans.

Assaf is the founding director of the highly recognized Jefferson Performing Arts Society. Among numerous conducting credits, his major accomplishment, thus far, has been his creation of his own professional symphony orchestra, which has virtually changed the cultural aura of his community. The orchestra, with Conductor Assaf, has appeared on CBS and numerous PBS broadcasts.

Rehearsals for the Bay Area Chorale will be held on consecutive Saturdays, beginning Jan. 9 through March 20 at the Baptist Church in Diamondhead. Rehearsal will be 2-4 p.m.

Soloist auditions will be conducted by Dennis Assaf, beginning Jan. 9 at 11 a.m. and will continue until completed.

These auditions will also be held at the Baptist Church that same day. For further information, call Joy Mehrstens at 452-3539 or Curtis Stout at 255-5571.

Becoming a member of the Bay Area Chorale has many advantages for those individuals who are interested in concert choral singing.

Being a part of this chorus will provide members the opportunity to learn good voice techniques rarely offered other than in private classes, to become familiar with a major choral work, to sing with a symphony orchestra and to join together as communities of one.

This is an ecumenical endeavor open to all, from senior high school to senior citizens.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The seeking of bids for the sand beach project in Hancock County is one of the good things 1993 will bring. A lot of work, effort and planning by many of us has gone into this project over the past five or so years.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors started their advertisement last Thursday and will be receiving bids prior to a Feb. 1, 10 a.m. bid opening.

There have been a lot of hurdles to overcome over the years, and hopefully they have all been resolved.

It takes a lot of time to check on plans and specifications, sand sources, getting proper permits, funding, and a lot of red tape.

This project is a good start, and I am happy to see it moving forward, as we sure need to have our beaches replenished.

The base project calls for some 209,030 cubic yards of hydraulic sand fill and related storm drainage system improvements.

Alternates 1 and 2 include 139,584 cubic yards and 286,890 cubic yards, respectively, of hydraulic sand fill, and related storm drainage system improvements.

I am hoping we will receive some good bids and hope the majority of our sand beach can be replaced.

Replenishing our beaches in 1993 will mean a lot to Hancock County in so many ways.

Christmas is now over with and many residents have already taken down their decorations and stored them for next year.

Unless you have an artificial tree, you have the problem of getting rid of your old tree.

An easy solution as to what to do with your tree, is to have it recycled.

This is after removing the ornaments and tinsel, and taking it this week to the Hancock County Civic Center on Longfellow Drive. There will be a roped area to place the discarded trees.

On Saturday, Jan. 2, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., volunteers will be at the site to give a sapling to anyone who brings a tree in.

Or if you take the tree to the Civic Center during this week, you can pass by the chamber office in Bay St. Louis on Highway 90 and receive a sapling.

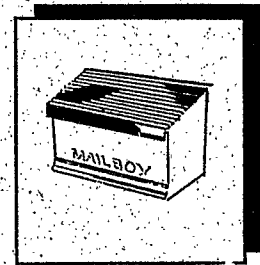

The discarded Christmas trees will be chipped into mulch which will be used throughout the county on beautification projects.

We in Hancock County have a landfill problem, just as most areas, and by having your tree recycled, this helps a beautification project and also saves valuable space.

Big help

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wetlands should be preserved, not developed

Dear Editor:

Question: What is the easiest way to reduce seafood in the American diet, increase homeowners' sewage fees by billions of dollars for pollution control, harm a wide variety of species and threaten thousands of lives with flooding?

Answer: Offer American wetlands to the developers and oil companies.

Would we be willing to permanently lose priceless irreplaceable pieces of art, history, or heritage, as in a fire or other catastrophe, if we had a choice of saving them instead? I think not.

Yet we are so willing to permanently fill in, destroy, and develop our few remaining vestiges of wetlands and the wildlife breeding grounds, habitat, and food chain that they provide in the name of economic 'progress' and jobs.

When states all around us are promoting, creating, restoring and developing new areas of priceless wetlands with the help and cooperation of some of their largest industries, we here in Mississippi, with what seems to be an uncontrollable bulldozer, chainsaw, bushhog mentality and zeal, are doing our best to destroy ours.

Mr. Buz Olsen, executive director of Hancock Port & Harbor Commission, and Michael Olivier, executive director of Harrison County Development Commission and founder of Gulf Coast Wetlands Coalition, are trying to have the term 'wetlands' re-defined in the existing protective laws, just as many developers are hoping to do away with the Endangered Species Act so they can continue their greedy raping and ravaging of our 800-year-old forests, and other wildlife habitat, (mostly on public lands, by the way — lands owned by the people of this country).

Mr. Olsen has already proposed a (fair? No net loss?) exchange of 300 acres of our precious wetlands for only one 90-acre permanent pond. Fair for whom? Certainly not the beneficiaries of our God-given wildlife heritage.

Is there no other land left for development in Mississippi except our precious wetlands because all other land is already developed, or is farmland or government property? It does point out a very serious and evident problem that should not take a genius to figure out. It is called very poor planning or overpopulation.

Some of our leaders, developers, or politicians have bought up some of this land hoping to make a killing off it through development, but are now faced with the realities of environmental and wildlife protection laws which prevent them from doing so. Thank God for that.

Enough development and destruction is enough already. Wildlife exists for every American to enjoy. Wetland development and its permanent destruction will ultimately take many species of wildlife away from us forever.

Literally all wildlife: birds, migratory waterfowl, frog, reptilian and insect species that depend on these wetlands for food, habitat and breeding grounds (and in turn provide the food chain for larger birds of prey, fish and mammals) are already declining dramatically. I realize much of this land is only under water for a few months each year, so it seems such a waste to preserve it and not to develop it.

It is during these rainy, wet periods that these lands act as reservoir sponges, and absorb excess water, thereby preventing flooding of other land. At the same time they filter and allow water to soak down to the aquifer providing us with clean purified drinking water.

When these lowlands are flooded in the springtime, they provide much needed food and resting place for the wonderful migratory birds and waterfowl as they migrate.

In the north they provide most of the nesting grounds for them as well. These are a few of the countless reasons why we must not re-define our wetlands and fill them in for development and short-term job and economic solutions.

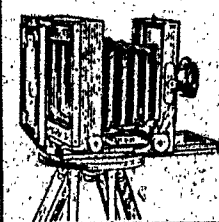

True, no one wants to own and pay taxes on property they can't use for a home or development. What we need to do instead of developing these wetlands is to provide a tax exemption or credit and incentive pay for the owners to preserve and even further improve this precious wildlife habitat, instead of incentive to sell out to developers and real estate interests.

I am sure we can provide just as many jobs building wildlife parks and refuges, recycling, and preserving our environment as we seem to always want to do by destructive bulldozing, paving, construction, and industry on these wetlands.

What do we do after we have destroyed all these wildlife habitats in just a few more years? Where will we expand to then? Perhaps farmland? That is already happening at an alarming rate. Where are we going to grow food for our expanding population? Reverse the population growth on this small planet. That is the main solution to virtually all the dilemmas we face today. Think about it.

Naturally,
Donald C. Holt

9th Martinolich earns USM degree

Special to the Echo
By J. Syd Conner
Maybe the old woman in the shoe was just confused.
Dr. and Mrs. A. K. Martinolich Jr. knew what to do with their 11 children—they told them to "work, study and pray," and they sent all but one of them, to the University of Southern Mississippi.

Cynthia Ann Martinolich, 22, child number 11, graduated from USM Friday, Dec. 18, with a bachelor of science in nursing degree, marking the ninth USM degree in the family, the 10th child to attend USM and the last child the Bay St. Louis couple has sent through college.
"It's a milestone—the last one made it," Martinolich said in an on-campus interview prior to USM's fall commencement. He released a big breath and pretended to wipe his brow.

"This is as big a day for me as it is for Cynthia."
USM President Aubrey K. Lucas extended the family a special invitation to his home on the afternoon, prior to commencement ceremonies, noting that nine children in one family with degrees from USM was, to his knowledge, a record.

Although Martinolich and wife Carol didn't insist that their children attend USM, he said college choices weren't entirely left to chance, either.
"It was a sort of an economic plan," Martinolich said. "It was a matter of tuition and proximity—plus I think USM is a good school."

A radiologist with offices in Gulfport and Bay St. Louis, Martinolich said his income was too much for his children to receive financial aid to attend college—but, judiciously used, it also was enough to pay their way.

In addition to 11 college educations, he said he's also paid for "132 years' of Catholic school."

While students at USM, several of the Martinolich children lived in their own dormitory of sorts. The family purchased a house in Hattiesburg for them to use while they were students. It has since been sold to a Hattiesburg couple.

All the children have "done well" in college, Martinolich said. The family motto may have had something to do with it: "Work, study and pray," Cynthia recited. "Every day," her father added.

From college, the children have gone into a variety of professions—including medicine, nursing, mathematics, biology, education, marketing and three types of engineering.

"Has it all been worth it?" "Children and education are the best investment," Dr. Martinolich said. "I still say that after all these years."

As the last of the 11 children, Cynthia said she's gained a lot of insight from her predecessor siblings.

"They've helped me choose what I wanted to go into and helped me graduate in four years," she said. "I got a lot of advice—some I've used and some I've tossed in the garbage."

Mrs. Martinolich said having more children has only meant more love and support for family members.

"When Cynthia had just gotten her driver's license, she was in an accident," Mrs. Martinolich remembers. "Somebody ran a red light and hit her. The hospital was full of her brothers and sisters."

"Everybody has such love for each other," she added.

"They're close," Martinolich echoed. "We always get together once a year. It's something to see. It's an ordeal."

Family reunions are even more of an ordeal since the Martinoliches got rid of their eight-foot, revolving dinner table. Even though it sat 16, however, it wouldn't accommodate the 13 original Martinoliches (all of whom lived at home at one time) plus accumulated spouses and "18 or 19" grandchildren.

"We keep losing count," Martinolich said with a laugh.

For the record, the children are Kenny, 40, of Fort Collins, Colo. (the only one who never attended USM); 38-year-old twins John, of Diamondhead, and Mark, of Moselle; Julie Cranford, 33, of Hattiesburg; Dr. Diane Wilkinson, 32, of Pensacola, Fla.; Nancy Hoelzel, 30, of Huntsville, Ala.; Kathy, 29, and Paul, 28, both of Bay St. Louis; Laurie, 25, of Kissimmee, Fla.; Stephen, 24, of Bay St. Louis; and Cynthia, 22, of Hattiesburg.

During the Friday evening commencement, Lucas conferred some 1,373 degrees, including 1,019 bachelor's degrees, 282 master's degrees, seven specialist's degrees and 65 doctorates.

The graduates were addressed by ESPN anchor/reporter Robin Roberts, who advised them to view their goals as achievable without expecting quick success.

"I began my career here at WDAM (TV) and I made it to what's considered a top position in my field," Roberts said. "I didn't get there overnight, I got there one step at a time."

Roberts also encouraged graduates not to think of their geographic region or heritage as a handicap.

"Don't give up because you don't see others like yourself in your profession," Roberts said. "Don't be afraid to be the first."

Martinolich Jr. and Carol Martinolich, to the USM president's home prior to USM's fall commencement ceremonies Dec. 18. Cynthia, the youngest of 11 Martinolich children, is the ninth to receive a USM degree and the 10th who attended USM.

ARTIN' ABOUT

Arts Commission:

The executive committee of the Mississippi Arts Commission will meet January 20, 1-3:30 p.m., on the second floor of the Robert E. Lee Building, 239 North Lamar Street, Jackson. The committee will review applications for folk arts apprenticeships.

The meeting is open to the public.

The Mississippi Arts Commission, established in 1968 by the Mississippi State Legislature, is the official grants-making and service agency to the arts in the state. Funding for the commission and its programs is provided by the state and by the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

UNITED WAY AGENCY PROFILES

GC Mental Health opens Friendship House

EDITORS NOTE: The United Way of South Mississippi assists many charitable organizations along the Gulf Coast. The following local group receives UW funding to continue its services to the public:

Gulf Coast Mental Health Center's presence in Hancock County expanded with the opening of Friendship House in Waveland. The new psychosocial clubhouse adds a third location in the county and widens the range of services offered to county residents close to their homes.

Friendship House, so named by its members, is a psychosocial rehabilitation clubhouse for people who have faced the difficulties associated with serious mental illness.

In the community environment of the clubhouse, members meet for several hours a day to re-learn old skills and abilities, learn new ones, and ultimately put these skills to use in competitive employment in the community.

Friendship House joins two other long-established Gulf Coast Mental Health Center locations in Hancock County, an outpatient office in Bay St. Louis and Hancock Industries in the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

In the Center's outpatient office in Shieldsboro in Shieldsboro Square, a staff of therapists, including specialists in child and adolescent, adult, family, and substance abuse services, are working with an active caseload that averages 350 clients.

These services are available by appointment to Hancock County residents of all ages. Charges are determined according to a sliding scale, which is based on family size and income.

HANCOCK INDUSTRIES
Hancock Industries, which opened in 1979 as a small work activity center for adults with developmental disabilities, now serves an average of 35 clients.

The growth, which has required several moves to expanded space, is due in large part to the successful contracting with a major Fortune 500 company.

Although at times the volume of work requires the hiring of temporary employees to complete a contract, the program sticks to its goal of placing clients in supported employment in the community.

Hancock Industries welcomes inquiries from employers who can provide employment opportunities to diligent, dependable workers who follow instructions.

GC MENTAL HEALTH CENTER

Gulf Coast Mental Health Center is a program of the Region XIII Commission for Mental Health-Mental Retardation, one of 15 regions in Mississippi responsible for providing community mental health and mental retardation services for the citizens of a designated area. In Region XIII, this area includes Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties. Anita Lamb of Bay St. Louis represents Hancock County on the four-member Region XIII Commission, which serves as the Center's governing board.

Services available to Hancock County residents are not limited to those with a home base in the county. Though located in Gulfport, two residential facilities serve the whole four-county region.

One is a group home for adult females with serious psychiatric disorders who are in need of either a place to live or emergency accommodations for temporary supervision.

The other is Live Oaks Treatment Center with a four-week residential program for treatment of alcohol and drug abuse.

Still others benefit from outreach services. Case managers from the Community Support, Developmental Disabilities, and Child and Adolescent Services maintain contact with clients throughout the four-county area in need of assistance in community adjustment and in gaining access to a coordinated array of services.

In an outreach program of Child Development Services, a team of professionals work with infants and toddlers with developmental delays and their families in providing developmental training and therapy.

As a full-service community mental health center, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center is dependent upon multiple funding sources to support the wide range of services provided.

For many years, a part of this support has come from the United Way in the three counties of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River that now make up the United Way of South Mississippi.

Girl Scouting

EDITORS NOTE: The United Way of South Mississippi assists many charitable organizations along the Gulf Coast. The following local group receives UW funding to continue its services to the public:

For over 30 years girls in Hancock County have had the opportunity to belong to an organization where their needs and interests are the priority—Girl Scouts.

The Girl Scout program is designed specifically for girls. Activities are designed to help girls develop critical life skills. Girls have a place where they are encouraged to try new things and experiment with new ideas. They are expected to be decision-makers and leaders. They can take risks and learn from their mistakes in a supportive environment of their peers without the social pressures to conform to stereotyped expectations.

All-girl setting important.

One of the key findings in the American Association of University Women's 1991 study, Shortchanging Girls, Shortchanging America, was this:

"The most interesting findings of the survey center on self-esteem. Adolescence is a tough time for both girls and boys. As girls and boys grow older, both experience a significant loss of self-esteem in a variety of areas; the loss is most dramatic and has the most long-lasting effect for girls."

Girl Scouting is uniquely qualified to be a vital force in the development of a girl's sense of worth. Girls work in a supportive atmosphere of caring adults and good female role models.

One in every eight girls is a Girl Scout in Hancock County.

In 1991, the Gulf Pines

Girl Scout Council served 393 girls and 124 adults in Hancock County. According to the 1991 school enrollment figures, 3,137 girls ages 5 through 17 are living in Hancock County. It is essential that every girl has the opportunity to reach her potential, attain the self-esteem and skills needed to succeed.

For more information about Girl Scouting in Hancock County, call the Gulf Pines Girl Scout Council 896-4047 (Gulfport) or the Hancock County volunteer coordinator, 533-7956 (after 5).

THE UNITED WAY NEEDS YOUR HELP NOW!

Despite a massive effort by teams of dedicated volunteers, the United Way for South Mississippi campaign is falling short of its 1992 Goal of $1.1 million needed to fund the 50 emergency, health and human service agencies serving Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River Counties. If you have not had the chance to make your gift yet, please do so today. The United Way can succeed only to the extent that the community supports the United Way. Please open your heart, lend a hand, and send in your gift. Thank you.

Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR COASTAL WETLANDS PERMIT AND WATER QUALITY CERTIFICATION

Bayou Caddy Inc. has filed an application with the Bureau of Marine Resources requesting permission to conduct regulated activities under the provision of the Coastal Wetlands Protection Law, Chapter 27, Mississippi Code of 1972.

The applicant is requesting permission to fill approximately 2.00 acres of tidal and non-tidal wetlands for a parking lot at the end of South Beach Blvd., Waveland, Hancock County, Mississippi.

In compliance with Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1261, 1241), as amended by PL 96-217, Bayou Caddy, Inc. requested certification from the Office of Pollution Control that the proposed regulated activity will be in compliance with applicable provisions of Section 301 (33 U.S.C. 1311), Section 302 (33 U.S.C. 1312), Section 303 (U.S.C. 1313), Section 305 (U.S.C. 1315), and Section 307 (U.S.C. 1317) of the Act and appropriate requirements of the State Law.

Any person wishing to make comments or objections to the proposed regulated activity must submit those comments in writing to the Bureau of Marine Resources at 2620 Beach Boulevard, Blvd., Mississippi 39531 and the Bureau of Pollution Control, Post Office Box 10385, Jackson, Mississippi 39205 before 1:00 p.m. on the 13th day of January, 1993.

The Ring Of The New

Time is precious.
Yesterday cannot be regained,
but Tomorrow can be changed.

Begin this year with your family at the church of your choice.
